Hello,

My name is Sophie Clarke a resident of Nipaluna/Hobart. As an educator of young people I feel as though it's my responsibility to address the current inconsistencies and gaps in the draft study plan for the salmon industry study.
I believe the salmon review needs the following considerations:

1. A standalone study topic that looks at the direct impacts (emotional, social, physical, economic) on people and community where industry has set up their operations. These are community members that are not affiliated with industry, for example workers & profiteers.
2. Public release of information papers and preliminary findings before conclusions are finalised, specifically as each study topic is completed.
3. A focus study topic on environmental impacts current and future for sea country and surrounding land.
4. Study topics being less skewed to industry, rather than talking about how the industry can be fixed, the study should be open to other outcomes like stopping the industry.
5. Looking at political corruption within the industry and regulators.

Thank you for considering these points, I wish you luck in finding the results that keep the beautiful state of Lutruwita/Tasmania healthy and thriving.

Thankyou,
Sophie Clarke
