Dear study leads,

My name is Ms. Paris Tuohy, and I live here in Nipaluna/Hobart. I moved here 5 years ago, drawn by Tasmania's beautiful coastal waters. Unfortunately, these waters are suffering, and will continue to decline if we do nothing about it. I work as a high school teacher, and I hope that my students will be able to see, access and experience our waterways.

The salmon review needs the following considerations:

- Public face-to-face community consultations must occur during the study
- Public release of information papers and preliminary findings before conclusions are finalised
- Indigenous leadership throughout the study and advisory group
- Transparency around lobbying and influence

Too often, we see recommendations put forward to the government and no action taken.

I strongly urge you to consider all future impacts, including industry reduction and/or alternative options such as land based aquaculture.

I strongly urge you to consider tourism and Tasmania's "clean, green" reputation - the very reason that I, and many others, relocate to Tasmania.

I strongly urge you to consider recreational fishing and public access to waterways, amenity and community wellbeing.

Thank you for your time, and I hope you make decisions that are in the best interest of the next generation of Tasmanians.

Regards,
Paris
